Item 3- Disciplinary Information

intellicents investment solutions inc. (“iis”) is required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to your evaluation of each supervised person providing investment advice. iis has no information to disclose in relations to this item.

Item 4- Other Business Activities

intellicents investment solutions is part of a consortium of companies that focus on providing employee benefit services to employers. The services include investment advisory services provided through iis, and through its affiliated companies: life, disability and health insurance services, and benefits consulting services that range from defined contribution retirement plans to employee wellness programs. These services are provided through multiple companies, of which Grant Arends is an officer.

For services provided by the affiliated intellicents investment solutions companies, the companies and Grant Arends may receive consulting fees and/or commissions on sales of any investment and insurance product sold to clients. iis may also provide investment advisory services to the clients of the affiliated intellicents investment solutions companies; however, iis never receives commissions on any assets under management for which iis receives advisory fees.

Item 5- Additional Compensation

Because of the nature and extent of the business intellicents investment solutions (iis and its affiliates) provides, various custodians and mutual fund companies may receive “revenue sharing” in the form of shareholder servicing fees, sub-transfer agency fees, 12b-1 fees and finders fees. These fees are fully disclosed to plan sponsors and participants and are passed on to the plan sponsor or the plan for use in offsetting plan related fees.

Item 6 - Supervision

There are several supervised persons who give general advice on behalf of intellicents investment solutions and are under the direct supervision of Mr. Nicholas Holmes, Chief Compliance Officer. Inquiries about Mr. Grant Arends should be forwarded to Mr. Nicholas Holmes at 800-880-4015.
